

I do not believe the NAB's current position on limiting the use of satellite radio broadcasts is in the best interest of the public. The advancement of technology in commercial business and the desire to promote innovation is exactly what free enterprise is designed to accomplish. Special interests that only promote status quo should not be allowed to stifle advancement and improvement of products and services in a free market. Although some regulation is required and should be practiced when the whole could be harmed, I do not see this being a possibility on this issue. Please, do not allow the NAB's efforts to oppose the foundation of which our free markets were designed to work.

Terrance Dodson